REASONS FOR DISTRIBUTION FROM IRAs AND REQUIRED ATTACHMENTS

Normal (after age 59½). Check this box if you are over age 59½. Generally, once an IRA participant has reached age 59½, assets may be withdrawn from an IRA without incurring any penalties. It is also considered a "normal" distribution if you are over age 70½ and are taking your Required Minimum Distribution (Traditional, SEP, SIMPLE). Special rules may apply to Roth IRA distributions. For more information, see section below titled Distributions From A Roth IRA.

Premature (before age 59½) - no known exception. Check this box if you are under age 59½ and there is no known exception. You should also check this box if you are under age 59½ and are taking a distribution for one of the following reasons: (1) The distribution is for qualified deductible medical expenses, (2) The distribution is to pay for medical insurance, because you are unemployed and meet the other IRS requirements, (3) You are paying for certain qualified higher education expenses, or (4) The distribution is for a "first time" home purchase ($10,000 lifetime limit). The penalty tax on premature distributions is generally equal to 10% of the taxable amount of the premature distribution. The penalty tax is in addition to regular income taxes due. The penalty tax is not paid at the time of the distribution, but paid directly to the IRS when filing your tax return. If applicable, complete IRS Form 5329 to claim an exception to the 10% penalty. Do not check this box if you are taking a series of substantially equal payments under IRC 72(t), or are converting a Traditional IRA to a Roth IRA. See the next paragraph, Premature - exception to penalty for more information on these exceptions.

72(t) (Premature, exception to penalty). Check this box if you are under age 59½ and your distribution is not subject to the 10% (or 25%) penalty tax because you are: (1) converting a Traditional IRA to a Roth IRA, (2) this distribution is being made because of an IRS levy under section 6331, or (3) this distribution is part of a series of substantially equal payments based on your life expectancy or the joint life expectancies of you and your beneficiary. Substantially equal payments must meet the following IRS requirements: you are using an IRS-Approved distribution method to calculate payments; you are taking at least one distribution annually; and the distributions will continue for 5 years or until you reach age 59½ whichever is later. Please consult your tax advisor for more information on these exceptions.

IRA to Qualified Retirement Plan. You can withdraw assets that have been held in an IRA and roll them over to a your employer's Qualified Retirement Plan. Examples of Qualified Plans are Pension Plans, 401(k), Money Purchase, Keogh, Profit Sharing, Tax Sheltered Annuity, Thrift Savings Plan, 457 Plan and 403(b). If you select this option, all assets being withdrawn must be registered and made payable to the Trustee of the Plan. Attach a signed Letter of Acceptance from the receiving Plan Administrator.

Death. If an IRA participant dies before reaching age 59½ or if an Education Savings Account is paid out due to the death of the original Designated Beneficiary (child), the assets can be distributed to the beneficiary without having to pay the 10% (or 25%) penalty tax, regardless of the beneficiary's age. Attach (1) copy of Death Certificate, (2) copy of Enrollment form or Change of Beneficiary form whichever is most recent, (3) if this distribution form is signed by a representative of the estate, certified Letters of Administration, (4) if a trust is the beneficiary, a copy of the trust agreement may be requested, and (5) if the designated beneficiary is disclaiming their interest, attach your Certified Disclaimer and the FCC IRA Beneficiary Disclaimer Certification form. All assets being withdrawn due to death of the account holder must be registered and made payable to the beneficiary or beneficiaries. The IRA Beneficiary Surviving Child Certification, completed by the IRA participant's Personal Representative, will be required if (1) the children are named as primary or contingent Beneficiary and an election was made by the IRA participant to have the beneficiaries share in the IRA per stirpes or, (2) FCC is required to pay to unnamed children of the deceased IRA participant.

Divorce. If you are required to transfer some or all of the assets in your IRA to your spouse or former spouse due to a divorce or separate maintenance agreement, generally the assets are directly transferred to the (ex)spouse's IRA. Attach a copy of the court executed divorce decree or separate maintenance agreement, along with additional paperwork, as may be required.

Disability. You can withdraw amounts from your IRA without having to pay the 10% (or 25%) penalty tax if you become disabled before you reach age 59½ or you are taking a distribution due to disability from an Education Savings Account. In order to qualify, you must be disabled within the meaning of IRC 72(m)(7). Generally, the IRS considers you disabled if you cannot do any substantially gainful activity because of your physical or mental condition. Your physician must determine that the condition is expected to be of "long-continued or indefinite duration", or that the condition can be expected to lead to death. The IRS will make the final determination as to whether you are entitled to this exception.

Early SIMPLE. Check this box if you are withdrawing amounts from your SIMPLE IRA in the first two years, are under age 59½ and none of the exceptions under section 72(t) are known to apply. The 2-year period begins on the date the first contribution was deposited into your SIMPLE account. Do not check this box if the distribution is due to death or disability. See the applicable Death or Disability paragraph for more information. The penalty tax on Early SIMPLE distributions is generally 25% of the taxable amount of the Early SIMPLE distribution. The penalty tax is in addition to any regular income taxes due. The penalty tax is not paid at the time of the distribution, but paid directly to the IRS when filing your tax return. Early SIMPLE distributions are reported as Code S on IRS form 1099-R.

Excess. An excess contribution could be the result of your own contribution, your spouse's contribution, your employer's contribution, or an ineligible rollover contribution. The IRS 6% penalty tax assessed on excess contributions may be avoided if, for the year in which the contribution was deposited, you (1) timely file your tax return and withdraw the excess contribution and the attributable earnings within 6 months after the tax return due date (which is October 15th if your tax return due date was April 15th), or (2) you filed for an extension to file your tax return and you withdraw the excess contribution and the attributable earnings prior to your tax filing due date including extensions. The distributed earnings may be subject to a 10% (or 25%) penalty tax. Please note that the earnings are taxable in the year the contribution is made, which is not necessarily the year the earnings are distributed from the IRA. If the excess contribution for a year is not withdrawn by the dates outlined in (1) or (2) above, you may be subject to additional taxes, including a 6% IRS penalty tax. You must pay the 6% tax for each year the excess amount remains in your IRA account. Please contact your tax advisor, as there may be additional taxes and/or penalties.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION ON DISTRIBUTIONS FROM A ROTH IRA

Roth IRA - Return of Principal (Contribution). When you take a distribution from a Roth IRA, the principal basis (contribution dollars) is distributed first and is generally tax and penalty free. Special rules may apply if you have deposited a conversion from a Traditional IRA to your Roth IRA.

Roth IRA - Return of Earnings. When you take a distribution of earnings from your Roth IRA, those amounts are taxable unless you meet the reason for a tax-free Qualified Distribution as described below. The portion of the non-qualified distribution that represents earnings will also be subject to the 10% additional income tax for premature distributions, unless an exception applies (see above).

Roth IRA - Qualified Distribution. A qualified distribution is one made after the end of the 5 year period beginning with the first taxable year for which you made a contribution to a Roth IRA AND (1) on or after you attain age 59½, (2) payable to a beneficiary after your death, (3) due to becoming permanently disabled, or (4) for qualified first time homebuyer expenses ($10,000 lifetime limit). Please note, 2003 is the earliest that the 5 year waiting period could have been satisfied.

ADDITIONAL INFORMATION REGARDING TAX WITHHOLDING

- If you are a U.S. citizen or resident alien and your address of record with us is outside the United States, or it's possessions, federal income taxes are required to be withheld in the amount of 10% from all IRA distributions. You may NOT elect out of this mandatory withholding.
- If you are a non-resident alien (NOT a U.S. citizen or resident alien), federal taxes are required to be withheld in the amount of 30% from all IRA distributions. You may not opt out of this withholding requirement.
- A withholding election is void if a TIN is not provided or when an incorrect identification number is furnished.
- In certain states, tax withholding is required on IRA distributions. These states have various withholding requirements. You MAY be permitted to opt out of state withholding, in which case a state withholding form may be required. You should consult your tax advisor or your state department of revenue for additional information.
- In certain states if Federal Withholding applies then state withholding is mandatory regardless of election.
- State withholding is not an option for all states.
- Amounts withheld for state withholding will be remitted to the state indicated in the address on record with us at the time of the distribution.
- Amounts withheld will be remitted on your behalf and will be reflected on the 1099R that you will receive from FCC in January of next year.
- Amounts elected for state withholding are in addition to any fees and Federal income tax withholding.

ON-DEMAND DISTRIBUTIONS

"On-Demand" distributions are withdrawals authorized by you upon verbally contacting your Financial Advisor. To be eligible for "on-demand" distributions a Distribution Request from IRA form must be completed and signed by you in advance of any "on-demand" distributions occurring. Distributions of stock will be valued by using the closing price on the day the shares are issued from the account. You may choose to have federal and/or state taxes withheld from your "on-demand" distribution. However, to ensure that withholding regulations are satisfied, you may only select a withholding PERCENTAGE. Your withholding election can be changed or revoked at any time by completing a new distribution form. Once "on-demand" distributions have been established, a new distribution form needs to be completed and signed by you when changes are made to the "Reason for Distribution", the "Method", or the federal or state withholding election. Only one On-Demand distribution form may be in effect at a time.
